

CRASH RECOVERY

JAMES FEATHERBY

TRINITY HALL LECTURE THEATRE

22ND NOVEMBER 2012

5.00-7.00 PM

The effects of the worst financial crisis in living memory are still around us. But how can we reverse the failings that led to such crises as those at Northern Rock, News International, GSK and Barclays? Do we need an increase in regulation, or in leadership and ethics training? Or is it more about incentives and personal morality?

Former corporate lawyer in the City and author of Of Markets and Men, Cambridge graduate James Featherby will explore these questions, arguing that finance reflects worldview. A panel of experts will respond.

This unique event includes networking and discussion and is supported by Transforming Business, the Kirby Laing Institute for Christian Ethics, the Jubilee Centre, and Christian Heritage, all based in Cambridge.

Everyone is welcome but please register by emailing Dr Peter Heslam, Transforming Business (www.transformingbusiness.net) on psh20@cam.ac.uk
